Chronology

- June 28, 1742 General James Robertson, the eldest son of John and Mary (Gower) Robertson was born in Brunswick County, Virginia. Robertson. A Revolutionary War Soldier, Robertson would become famous as the founder of Nashville and "Father of Tennessee."
- Jan. 2, 1751 Charlotte Reeves, the future wife of Gen. James Robertson was born in Northampton County, North Carolina to parents George Reeves and Mary Jordan. The city of Charlotte, Tennessee, and Charlotte Pike in Nashville were named in her honor.
- Jan. 21, 1768 James Robertson married Charlotte Reeves at Wake County, North Carolina. She was the daughter of a Presbyterian minister and a Sweetheart of his youth.
- Oct. 1770 The twenty-eight year old James Robertson led several families to the Upper Holston and Watauga Rivers, west of the Alleghany Mountains in what is now East Tennessee.
- May 1772 The Watauga settlement established the Watauga Association and a "constitution" which some consider to be the first Declaration of Independence, based on a majority-rule system of democracy.
- July 4, 1776 The United States of America declared independence from the British Empire.
- 1776 During the year, James Robertson negotiated with the Indians for Henderson's Purchase including lands on the Cumberland, although it was not finalized for several years.

- 1779-80 The Cumberland Settlers arrived at French Lick, headed by James Robertson. The pioneers, starting from Watauga settlement, trekked hundreds of miles across the Cumberland Plateau to make a permanent home in the Cumberland Settlement. Several forts were established, the largest was popularly known as the French Lick Fort, also called Fort Nashborough. Other stations established were Mansker's, Asher's, Bledsoe's, Stone's River, Freeland's, Eaton's and Fort Union.
- Apr. 24, 1780 Colonel John Donelson, with the help of John Cockrill, Charles Robertson, William Reeves and others, arrived in the French Lick settlement with the women and children via a flotilla of boats. The 1000-mile voyage would include Rachel Donelson, the future wife of Andrew Jackson.
- Spring 1780 The Cumberland Compact document was signed by more than 200 frontier settlers to create a local government in the Cumberland Valley of Middle Tennessee. The signers included inhabitants of Fort Nashborough, Fort Union, Mansker's, Bledsoe's, Asher's, Stones River, Freeland's, and Eaton's stations.
- Summer 1780 The first wedding in the colony took place at Fort Nashborough, the marriage of Capt. James Leiper and Miss Susan Drake.
- Jan. 11, 1781 Felix Robertson was born at Freeland's Station. He was the sixth child of James and Charlotte (Reeves) Robertson, acknowledged as the first white child born in the Nashville settlement.
- April 2, 1781 Fort Nashborough was attacked by a force of Chickamauga Cherokees led by Dragging Canoe in the "Battle of the Bluffs," wherein the settlers managed to fend off the attack with the help of the fort's hound dogs, unleashed by Charlotte Reeves Robertson. In defense of the fort, Capt. James Leiper was mortally wounded during the assault.
- April 1783 James Robertson was elected representative to the North Carolina legislature.
- May 17, 1783 Davidson County was created from Washington County, North Carolina; named in honor of the Revolutionary War officer William Lee Davidson.
- Oct. 1784 James Robertson's family moved to West Nashville to make their home on land situated at Richland Creek.
- ca. 1786-87 The Robertson family moved from their humble log cabin that was built in early 1779 to a newly built brick manse situated beside Richland Creek.

- 1796 Tennessee achieved statehood with John Sevier elected her first governor.
- 1806 Nashville was declared a city and was incorporated, electing six aldermen and a mayor.
- Sept. 1, 1814 James Robertson died while serving as a U. S. Indian Agent to The Chickasaw and Choctaw Indians in the present-day state of Mississippi.
- 1825 Gen. James Robertson's bones were removed to Nashville and interred in the public burying ground at City Cemetery. The ceremonials of homage from the state were delivered by Judge John Haywood, an old friend of Gen. Robertson.
- 1843 Charlotte Robertson, the wife of Gen. James Robertson passed away at the age of ninety-two. She is buried in Nashville's City Cemetery beside her husband.
- 1859 The Tennessee State Capitol is completed.
- 1880 Nashville celebrates the centennial year of its founding.
- 1796 Tennessee became the sixteenth state.
- Mar. 30, 1796 John Sevier became governor of Tennessee in which post he served until September 23, 1801. He was succeeded by Archibald Roane. Sevier would serve another term as governor from 1803-1809.
- 1815 Andrew Jackson defeated the British at the Battle of New Orleans.
- Oct. 11, 1903 A monument in Centennial Park was dedicated to James Robertson and presented to the city of Nashville by Major E. C. Lewis. Robertson's descendants from twenty states and one foreign country gathered with the citizens of Nashville for the unveiling of the monument located on the edge of Lake Watauga in Centennial Park.
- 1930 A replica of Fort Nashborough was constructed by four Nashville chapters and the Tennessee Society, DAR, with funding from the State of Tennessee, Davidson County, and City of Nashville. The structure stands next to Riverfront Park between the Cumberland River and First Avenue North in downtown Nashville.

- June 1, 1971 The James Robertson Descendants and Kin Association was chartered with the State of Tennessee.
- 1973 Children of Nashville by Sarah Foster Kelley was published by Blue & Gray Press of Nashville.
- April 21, 1979 Descendants of Fort Nashborough Pioneers hold first general at the Hermitage House Smorgasbord, called to order by President Arthur Nolen Robertson.
- March 1983 Sarah Foster Kelley attended the meeting of the Cohn Community Council (later known as the West Nashville Community Council) wherein Professor W. R. Rochelle and writer Eva Jean Wrather recommended her for the job of writing West Nashville's centennial history.
- May 26-27, 1984 "Old Timers Day" celebrating West Nashville 97th Anniversary Exposition in Richland Park, sponsored by Cohn Area Community Council and the West Nashville Community Development Association.
- May 17-18, 1986 Homecoming '86 West Nashville Exposition Day, sponsored by the West Nashville Community Council, in cooperation with the Pearl-Cohn Band and Athletic Boosters, the Sylvan Park Neighborhood Association, the West Nashville Business Association, Inc, and local churches, schools and businesses.
- 1987 The 443-page illustrated book "West Nashville: Its People and Environs" by Sarah Foster Kelley was published, coinciding with the 100th anniversary of New Town, West Nashville.
- May 14, 1988 West Nashville Exposition celebrating the founding of "New Town and 101 Years of Progress" held at Richland Park and sponsored by the West Nashville Community Council, with Ralph M. Cohen, Chairman and Sarah Foster Kelley, Vice-Chairwoman.
- June 1, 1996 Statehood Day Celebration and Bicentennial Capitol Mall Dedication Ceremony in an event-filled day celebrating Tennessee's 200th birthday.
- 1996 A replica of Nashville founder James Robertson's log home was completed during the Tennessee Bicentennial, located in H. G. Hill Park, 6730 Charlotte Avenue, West Nashville.

- May 11, 1997 The West Nashville Founders' Museum, Inc. had its formal opening, after more than a decade of getting the educational non-profit museum home built as a memorial to Gen. James Robertson.
- 1998 Sarah Foster Kelley finished a 615-page research publication via computer about her ancestor: The Saga of General James Robertson: Father of Tennessee.
- 2000 The Scotch-Irish Origins of General James Robertson was published, based on the larger research publication The Saga of General James Robertson: Father of Tennessee.
- July 16, 2002 Sarah Foster Kelley, founder of the West Nashville Museum Association, passed away after her eight-year battle with cancer. She was interred at Woodlawn Memorial Park in Nashville.
- May 12, 2007 The newly refurbished James Robertson House reopened at its location in H. G. Hill Park, 6730 Charlotte Pike, Nashville, Tennessee. At the event, co-founders of the West Nashville Founders Museum, Sarah Foster Kelley (1939-2002) and Ralph Cohen (1928-2005) were memorialized with a pink dogwood and brass marker for Sarah, and a white dogwood with brass marker for Ralph. On the Robertson House dogtrot is encased a slice of the historic Chickasaw Treaty Oak, which stood about 300 years on Robertson's Richland Creek land. WNFM headquarters are in the Robertson House and the station hosts tours and community events inside the home by appointment.

Biographical/Historical Sketch

Sarah Foster Kelley (1939-2002) was a seventh-generation descendant of James and Charlotte Robertson through their youngest daughter, Lavinia Beck Craighead. She was born May 25, 1939, the fourth of five children born to Jesse Paul and Lavinia Hill Foster of West Nashville. She attended West Nashville schools and earned a B.S. degree from Nashville's George Peabody College for Teachers. Married to Ernest Starnes Kelley, they raised a son, Ernest Starnes Kelley, Jr.

In the late 1960s, Sarah Foster Kelley began to record the history and genealogy of the James Robertson family, as well as documenting and corresponding with descendants extensively. In 1971, Kelley chartered the General James Robertson Descendants and Kin Association and served as the first chairman on the board of directors. She organized the West Nashville Founders' Museum Association in 1986 for the purpose of reconstructing the James Robertson log house that was constructed in H. G. Hill Park in West Nashville in 1996.

Sarah Foster Kelley was the author of many books, including "Children of Nashville: Lineage of James Robertson," (1973), based on the author-historians' correspondence with Robertson descendants across the United States and her research of numerous old deeds, marriage books, census records and cemetery records. Additional books by Kelley include the following: Scotch-Irish Origins of General James Robertson; West Nashville: Its People and Environs; The Family of Captain James Bosley: Nashville Pioneer and Trader; The Family of Ellen Mordant Davis: Wife of Peyton Robertson, Nashville Physician; The Family of Ann Robertson Johnson Cockrill: Nashville's First School Teacher; The Dillingham Family of Middle Tennessee; and The Linton Family of Linton, Tennessee. Kelley's opus also includes a 639-page computer-generated publication entitled The Saga of General James Robertson: Father of Tennessee that she copyrighted in 1998.

Scope and Contents of the Collection

The collection contains material relating to the historical research and book publications of author-historian Sarah Foster Kelley, a seventh-generation descendant of General James Robertson and Charlotte Reeves Robertson. Includes numerous records about Robertson family history and research files on many of the families that were among the earliest settlers of what is now Nashville, Tennessee, such as the Cockrills, Dunns, Mays, and Napiers. The collection contains genealogical research files, biographical subject files, correspondence, photographs, and additional evidential sources that Kelley collected during a period of more than thirty years of research and historical publications, including a large volume of correspondence with other descendants and researchers. Also present in the collection is a portion of Kelley's research for her book, West Nashville: Its People and Environs, relating to building property research files for West Nashville homes.
